Help for emergencies in the UK

Emergencies can strike at any time and anywhere. The British Red Cross is there to give support to anyone affected. They provide the people with, equipment, space and resources to support those affected by an emergency, helping them to recover.

The BRS can give support when emergencies happen: to individuals and families to local communities across the UK. Whether it is a fire in a family home or a large-scale national emergency, you can depend on the British Red Cross 24/7.
